Description

Provide a short description of the event and its activities.

The WP1's workshop on the theme EU for All! EU Institutions and Opportunities it offers, was divided into two events that involved 76 participants.

The first event was organized at the University of Palermo on 24/5/2023. The second event was organized at the Youth Center in Palermo.

16/06/2023 Palermo Youth Centre-PYC

Event 1 University of Palermo:

The first event, aimed at students, professors and staff of the University of Palermo, involved 2 staff members of CESIE, with experience on the European Union, and an expert on European institutions and regional and no-profit economy. The event was hosted in the great hall of the Department of Economics, Business and Statistics.

The first part of the programme provided an introduction to EUNITE!. In particular on the European political and social context of recent years, from which the need to conceive the EUNITE project arose. Participants have been introduced to the project's objectives, achievements and the importance of participation in the upcoming European elections and participatory citizenship. Above all, we tried to involve the participants in an interactive debate, analyzing their doubts and knowledge about the European Union. In general, we have tried to involve them, so that they can participate in the whole process of activities that the project foresees with its events, in order to prepare the participants for the next European elections with a critical and sensitive sense regarding their potential as European citizens.

The subsequent modules envisaged by the event program were also developed on this approach. In the second session, we discussed the levels of territorial governance and participatory strategies for Europe, and the importance of active citizenship. We also introduced participants to the Multilevel Innovation Governance Framework, in order to make awareness about the potentiality of citizens on influence the policies at local, national and European level through the tools of democracy and the rights the EU provides.

A final part of the programme was dedicated to the opportunities the EU offers to the target group involved, mainly students. The trainer gave an idea of the more important opportunity in mobility, in particular about the Erasmus+, and the opportunity this gives for short or long-term experiences abroad. In the final phase it ended with the completion of the evaluation questionnaires of the participants, from which emerged a strong interest in the offered topics.

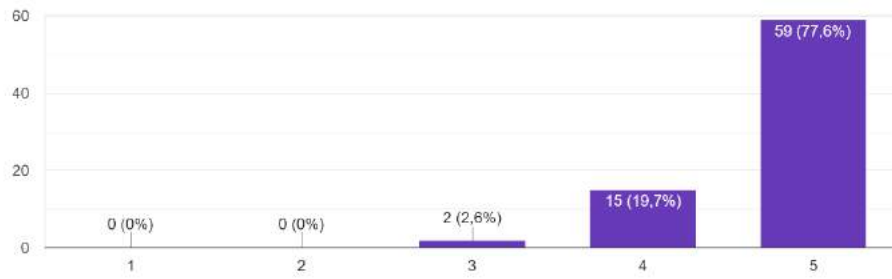

EVENT 2 Palermo Youth Centre. Due to the success found at the university, regarding the attention and participation for the topics addressed, we tried to maintain the same structure as the first event at the PYC as well. At the PYC event took part an expert on local policies, with experience at the European Parliament, and CESIE experts. The trainer carried out icebreaker activities and started on introducing participants to the event topics and EUNITE project. By starting from some simple question, like What does active participation mean to you? When I say European Union what comes to your mind? trainer involved the participants in activities in order to reflect on the EU and their participation. After this introductory part, we shared his European Parliament experience and PYC local participatory democracy experience. After the session, the CESIE trainer started different interactive activities on prompting participants to reflect on participatory democracy, elections, their position as citizens with regard to the EU. A final session was dedicated to the opportunities the UE offers, in particular about the Erasmus +, and the opportunity this gives for short or long-term experiences abroad. In the final phase it ended with the completion of the evaluation questionnaires of the participants, from which emerged a strong interest in the offered topics.
